Required 4 levels of languages by declared Area

Global Studies students are strongly urged to continue developing their language fluency each semester of their college career, even beyond the major's required total of six levels of language study. Optimally, students will pursue six levels (required) or more of a language appropriate to their declared area.

- If a student chooses to pursue 4 levels of one language and 2 levels of another language (to fill the required 6 levels for the major), the 4-levels of language must correspond to their declared area. For example: If a student wants to declare ASIA as an AREA, he/she must be aware that French can only be used for a supporting 2-levels of language. Students with ASIA as declared AREA must take at least 4 levels of an appropriate Asian language.

AFRICA	Arabic, French, Kiswahili and Portuguese (6 or more levels offered @ UNC). Dutch (5 levels @ offered at UNC), Lingala (4 levels @ UNC), Wolof (4 levels offered @UNC).
ASIA	Chinese, Hindi-Urdu, Japanese and Korean (6 or more levels offered @ UNC). Turkish (4 levels offered @ UNC).
LATIN AMERICA	Spanish, Portuguese (6 or more levels offered @ UNC).
MIDDLE EAST	Arabic, Modern Hebrew and Persian (6 or more levels offered @ UNC). Turkish (4 levels @ UNC)
RUSSIA/EASTERN EUROPE	Russian, Czech, Hungarian, Polish, Serbo-Croatian (4 levels @ UNC)
WESTERN EUROPE/ EUROPEAN UNION	French, German, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish Dutch is also an appropriate language but only three levels of this language are offered at UNC. See Department of Germanic Languages for more information about Dutch language classes at UNC: http://gsll.unc.edu/ . Greek is also an appropriate language but Greek language courses taught at UNC are for "Classical Greek" not the modern, spoken Greek language pertinent to the INTS major. Modern Greek is taught at Duke.
