Health Professions Advising (HPA) advises students who are interested in entering a field in the health professions. Throughout the academic year, advisors and mentors work to help students define and pursue their goals.

In addition to providing strong support for pre-med students, HPA advisors and mentors help students consider a variety of professions beyond medicine. In turn, HPA assists students with identifying required courses for numerous post-baccalaureate programs. HPA also acts as a clearinghouse for literature and information about these programs.

All prospective health professions students are strongly encouraged to visit the HPA website where they may sign up for the HPA listserve and find out more about services: http://prehealthadvising.unc.edu.

Health Professions Advising can help students:
- Create educational and professional goals whether pursuing a career as a podiatrist, physical therapist, clinician, dentist, physician assistant, or epidemiologist
- Research schools and programs in many areas of interest
- Determine required courses for admission to health professions schools and programs
- Identify extra- and co-curricular opportunities to network and develop skills
- Develop a timeline and plan for application to a health professions program.
